Supplementary Material

Bacterial Community Composition in the Sea Surface Microlayer off the Peruvian Coast

Birthe Zäncker¹*, Michael Cunliffe²,³, Anja Engel¹

¹GEOMAR – Helmholtz Centre for Ocean Research Kiel, Kiel, Germany

²Marine Biological Association of the UK, The Laboratory, Citadel Hill, Plymouth, UK

³Marine Biology and Ecology Research Centre, School of Biological and Marine Sciences, Plymouth University, Plymouth, UK

*Correspondence:
Birthe Zäncker
bzaencker@posteo.de

1 Supplementary Figure
Figure S2: Composition of total combined carbohydrates (TCHO) across stations (on the y-axis) in nM. Gluconic acid and muramic acid could not be detected in any of the stations and are thus not included in the graph.